United Against Workplace Bullying Conference - November 2023

We are delighted to present this year's United Against Workplace Bullying Conference on 14th and 15th of November 2023, delivered virtually with speakers from across the world.

The conference is hosted by Conduct Change Ltd as part of their social purpose to provide advocacy, campaigning, education and awareness raising about workplace bullying. From a foundation of research into new approaches and awareness raising, we are creating proposals for change to both workplace approaches and to legislation.

We are campaigning for formal recognition of workplace bullying as a problem that injures individuals and damages organisations. The law does not provide sufficient protection or redress for people whose employers let bullying go unchecked, making the process of seeking legal remedy in these cases unduly complex and arduous. We are working with lawyers and legislators to identify and close the gaps in legislation through the Bullying and Respect at Work Bill.

We share and showcase news and progress at the United Against Workplace Bullying conference each November to provide education and awareness raising, with a focus on finding solutions.

The conference will help us to continue this work moving forward.

Our audience covers public, private and charity sectors, particularly those with responsibility for HR, L&D, Wellbeing, ESG and ethics. It also attracts academics, as well as individuals who have been affected by workplace bullying.
